

To Whom It May Concern:

When I first started my search for a builder to build my new home in Vancouver West I was not looking for the cheapest price, I was looking for an honest, quality builder that took pride in his work. From the first meeting with Steve Kemp from Kemp Construction I knew I had found the right company to work with..

From the demo of the existing home on the property to move in day Kemp Construction was very professional and a joy to work with. The most important piece as far as we're concerned, is the high standard of service Steve Kemp holds himself to. When I called, he was there. If we left a message, we heard back within hours. When we emailed, he responded right away. When we asked to meet up there was no hesitation. Even after we moved into our home he's still there for us! As with any new build we've had a couple of issues come up that have needed to be addressed and Kemp Construction hasn't failed us. "When can I come over?" is the response we get.

Like many homeowners I did not realize the amount of required permits, inspections, & paperwork before, during, & post construction which was all taken care of by Kemp Construction. In fact Kemp Construction informed me of a tax rebate I was unaware of after the build which I received thousands of dollars back from the government.

I don't hesitate to recommend Kemp Construction to anyone we know who may be building now or in the future. Quality, professionalism, money management, and exceptional service – what more could you ask for?

Sincerely,

Stanley
